Building Cultural Competence in the Classroom

As NAIDOC Week enters its 50th year, both the progress made—and the work still to do—in truth-telling, celebrating First Nations cultures and honouring resistance comes into focus.

Building cultural competence is an ongoing commitment. We support educators in this work by ensuring our First Nations resources are authentic. Books and resources with First Nations themes are created by First Nations authors and illustrators and/or are sourced from First Nations-owned businesses. This commitment gives teachers confidence that products purchased through Teacher Essentials and School Essentials support the respectful delivery of First Nations perspectives.

How can there be racism when we are one human race?
Our difference is our biggest strength; not something to debate.

From award-winning Kamilaroi and Euahlayi author and artist Gregg Dreise, comes this empowering call for unity, embracing what connects us all . . . our humanity.

ABOUT THE CREATOR

Gregg Dreise is an award-winning author, artist and musician. He began writing poems as song lyrics for his band, and later developed a taste for telling old yarns, especially around a campfire. Gregg plays the didgeridoo and guitar in his lively performances at schools, libraries and festivals. He is a proud descendant of the Kamilaroi and Euahlayi people of south-west Queensland and north-west New South Wales.

ONE RACE

Written and Illustrated by Gregg Dreise

Teaching Notes prepared by Rae Carlyle | Recommended for: Middle to Upper Primary

BEFORE READING

Discuss the features of the book cover, front and back:

- What are the different meanings of the word Race?
- Do you think that the title One Race means?
- What can you see happening in the cover artwork?
- What does the front cover of this book tell you about where the artist lives?
- Who do you think this book is written for?
- How would you describe the cover artwork of this book?
- What colours have been used on the cover of this book, and why do you think they might have been chosen?
- Look carefully at the back cover of the book. What does this artwork say to you?
- Read the text on the back of the book. How does it complement the artwork?

As a class, read the dedication at the front of the book. What does this tell you about the author, and why they have written this story? Were you right about who this book is written for?

- Looking at the first page of the story, as a class discuss what you can see happening.
- What are the hands holding?
- Why is what they are holding so important?
- What symbols can you see appearing within the illustration on this first page?
- What do the symbols that you can see represent?
- What does this page tell us about the rest of the story?

DURING & AFTER READING

General discussion points and activity ideas:

- As you read the story, what symbols can you see appearing and reappearing in the illustrations, and what do each of these different symbols represent? Why do you think the author chose to include them in his artwork? How do they complement the message within the text of the book?
- What do you think it means when the author says 'Our difference is our biggest strength'? What can you see the people on the artwork behind this text doing? How do the actions of the characters in the illustrations support the message within the text?

- What do you think is the most important message that this book is sharing with us? Why do you think this?
- As a class, talk about what songs you know that help support the message of the story. Choose one or two to learn as a class and sing it at a school assembly or parent open day.
- What does it mean to embrace someone or something? What does it mean when we say we embrace an idea or behaviour? Can you think of some other ideas or behaviours that this book's overall message is suggesting that everyone should embrace?
- What is the symbolism behind a dove flying with an olive branch? Can you see any other symbols representing the same/similar concept in this particular illustration?
- How many different animals can you identify in the artwork of this story?
- How does reading this book make you feel?
- Create an A3 size artwork of your own, that you feel shares your emotional response to this story. Present your artwork to the class, sharing what it represents and how and why it was inspired by the contents of One Race.
- As a class, discuss some of the various ways that we can all benefit from the differences between us. Some things to think about when discussing this might be:

- Viewpoints and problem solving
- Food
- Media and stories
- Music; science
- Celebrations and parties

- Clothing
- Ideas
- Strengths and weaknesses
- Mutual support.
