AUGIE the CORGI and JANE the GREAT DANE

Written by Josh Pyke Illustrated by Tommy Doyle

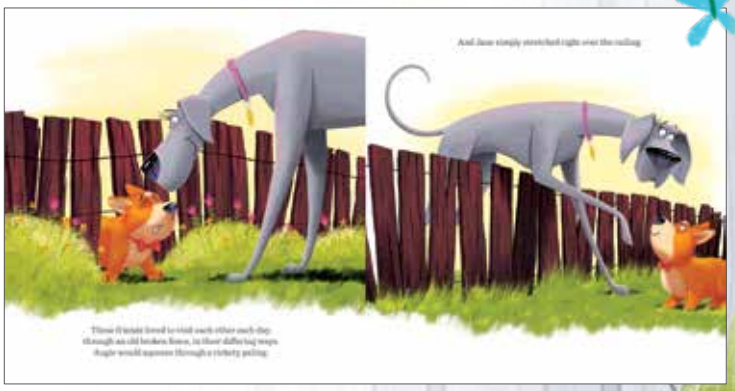

JOSH says

Oh I am SO excited about this one! Meet Augie the Corgi and Jane the Great Dane—two of my absolute favourite characters I've ever created. They are funny and fun and wonderfully different from each other, and I just love them so much. I can't wait for kids to meet them and go on adventures with them. These two are something really special and I have a feeling they're going to find their way into a lot of hearts. Welcome to the world, Augie and Jane!

Augie the Corgi and Jane the Great Dane live next door to each other in Hummingbird Lane. Through a broken old fence, the friends come and go, until one fateful day when the fence is repaired ... OH NO! Can these puppy pals find their way back to each other?

KEY SELLING POINTS:

- A funny, warm-hearted and joyful picture book about companionship, and the great lengths you'll go to for a friend!
- Augie and Jane are the very best of friends, squeezing under and over their rickety old fence every day to play. Until one day when they're suddenly cut off from each other. There's only one thing left to do ... get DIGGING!
- From award-winning children's book author and musician, Josh Pyke.
- Josh Pyke will be on a whirlwind tour around the country, performing his new album, visiting bookstores and promoting his new picture book!
- For fans of Bluey, Hairy Maclary and Pig the Pug.

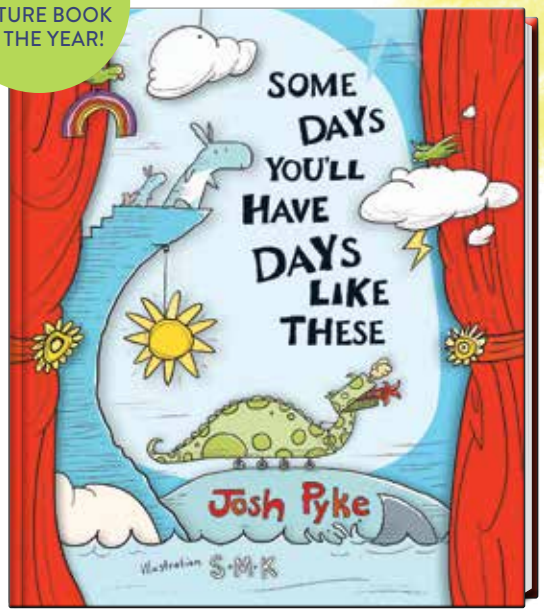

JOSH says

I wrote this one because I wanted kids to know that hard days are part of life—and that's completely okay. There is so much hope in these pages. And once again the magnificent Stephen Michael King illustrates it so beautifully. Every time I get to work with Stephen I pinch myself. What a privilege. I hope this one becomes a favourite in your house.

Some days you'll wake up with fair-weather eyes and spring from your bed into butterfly skies. Some days feel bumpy and strangely confusing, and it feels like the ground that you've gained, you're now losing. From glumness to glee, you know you'll push through. Some days are like this, yes, some days that's true. A captivating picture book about navigating sunny days and sad days, happy days and hard days, from the much-loved, multi-award-winning creators Josh Pyke and Stephen Michael King.

JOSH says

I really wanted to give kids a gentle reminder that it's okay to let go of your worries sometimes—your head doesn't have to hold it all! And I have to say, seeing Stephen Michael King bring this story to life was just incredible. Stephen is one of my absolute heroes and working with him is such an honour. I hope kids and parents love it as much as I do.

Some problems seem heavy, they can weigh you down. Your mind feels too cluttered, the world seems too loud! Sometimes your brain feels full up and crowdy. Your mood swings from sunny to suddenly cloudy. We're full to the brim with unknowable things, but your head's not the place to store problems in. A whimsical and wise picture book on navigating life's ups and downs, from two multi-award-winning creators.

JOSH says

I wrote this one from a really tender place. It's about the memories and moments we carry with us, the little things that mean everything. I hope it sparks some beautiful conversations between you and your kids. Those chats are everything.

JOSH says

Family is everything to me, and this book is really just a love letter to that idea. The way our roots run deep, the way the people who came before us shape who we are—I find that endlessly moving. I hope you and your little ones snuggle up and read this one together. It means a lot to me and I think it'll mean a lot to you too.

A powerful story about Partition, with a hopeful message at its heart.

When a line divides the country of India, a little girl and her family are forced to leave their home. On her journey, the girl thinks about what she would do differently if she was in charge of a line with so much power.

She would draw lines that brought people together, despite their differences. Her lines would make people friends. Her lines would make the world a better place.

KEY SELLING POINTS:

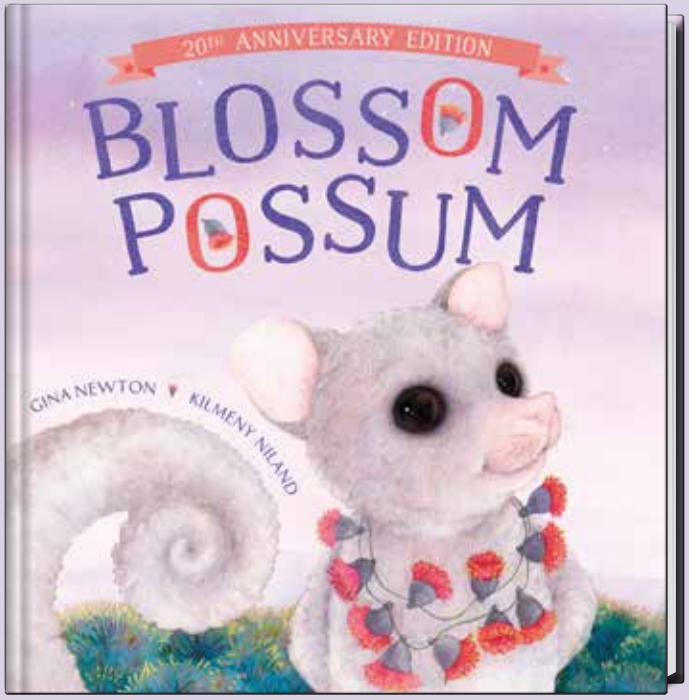

- Author Swapna Haddow is of Indian heritage, while illustrator Farah Shah is British-Pakistani, representing both sides of the partition.
- The hopeful message of the story and warmth of the illustrations handle the subject matter with care, making it suitable for a young audience.
- Based around a historic event, but with important themes that are still very relevant today.
- Includes a spread at the back of the book with facts about the Partition of India.

When Sophia is accepted into the Teen Orchestra Focus Camp, she's equal parts excited and terrified. It's her dream to play clarinet for the symphony orchestra, but the camp will have a hundred hopefuls just like her, all competing to be noticed. And will she be able to make even one friend? Gabe isn't sure about anything anymore. He hates his new school and his new family dynamic. Percussion was always his happy place, but lately, even that has lost its shine. When he's accepted into the teen camp, his dad makes it clear: this is his last chance to sort himself out. But when Sophia and Gabe are paired together at camp, they completely clash. How can Sophia be expected to work with someone who doesn't seem to care about his music at all? And how can Gabe deal with the quiet, intense, super-serious nerd Sophia seems to be? Will they be able to find their rhythm, or are they destined to fall flat at the final showcase?

DRAGON GIRLS

THE TREASURE DRAGONS COLLECTION

Maddy Mara

3 BOOKS IN 1

"It's amazing, right?"

Mei jumped at the sound of the voices. There, in the middle of the glade, hovered two Dragon Girls. One was jade green and the other was sapphire blue. Like Mei, they had a heady mix of silver and gold on their wings and tails. They must be Treasure Dragon Girls, too!

"You two look incredible," exclaimed Mei. "And fierce. In a good way!"

The dragons laughed.

"Thanks!" said the one with sapphire-blue jewels embedded in her wings. "Is that you, Mei? It's me, Aisha. And this is Quinn. We just got here. Can you believe it? We're Dragon Girls!"

Mei stared at them, openmouthed. Were they really her friends from jewellery class? They looked so different.

Quinn let out a happy little roar. A wisp of green fire curled from her mouth. "I know! It's amazing!" she said. "Have you tried flying yet? It's kind of hard."

"So hard!" Aisha said, laughing. "I keep getting caught in my own tail! But I've figured out how as the Dragon Girls clapped their paws furiously.

"Incredible!" Aisha said. "I didn't know spiderwebs could sound like that."

"Most can't," said Aria. "But I am a Song Weaver."

Something was bothering Quinn. "Why haven't the Shadow Sprites stolen your sounds?" she asked.

"Oh, they keep trying," said Aria. "But my family and I have been spinning musical webs for as long as the Magic Forest has been here. They are no match for us. Also, we just bite them when they get close."

"You have family?" Quinn asking, trying to focus on that and not think about being bitten by a spider.

Aria put two of her feet to her mouth and gave a short, sharp whistle. From behind the leaves appeared hundreds of shiny silver spiders, some bigger and some smaller, their eyes all glittering like jewels.

Mei, Aisha and Quinn are very different. But the friends have one big thing in common: they are the Treasure Dragon Girls! Drawing on the power of precious gems, the trio transform into brave and mighty creatures who fly higher and faster than they ever dreamed possible. Best of all are their bright and powerful roars!

The Treasure Dragons have been called into the Magic Forest to stop the Shadow Queen from plunging the forest back into an endless grey twilight. The evil queen has stolen three ancient objects from the forest's treasure vault – the Forest Book, the Magic Mirror and the Heartstring Violin. These objects are the very source of the forest's magic!

In these three thrilling adventures, the Treasure Dragon Girls must work together and harness their amazing new abilities. They are the only ones who can return the treasure to the vault deep underground, and restore the Magic Forest to harmony!

Family is forever. Until now. Kenzie and Quinn aren't just stepsisters—they're best friends. They're spending the summer with their grandmother, kayaking in the marshy coastal islands she calls home. The Outer Banks are also home to a herd of wild ponies, and the girls fall in love with a fragile newborn foal that they name Starling. But even blue skies and sandy beaches can't distract from what's going on back home. Things between their parents aren't the way they used to be, and the constant fights have left Kenzie and Quinn anxious and confused. They can't remember a time when they weren't a family. If their parents divorce and Quinn and her mum move away, will they even still be sisters ... or will they be nothing? As their world shifts around them, the girls swear to do the one thing they can: keep Starling safe.

KEY SELLING POINTS:

Enter a secret wonderland in the sky where Japanese legends come to life. Twelve-year-old Jonty desperately wants an adventure, but he knows it's unlikely when he's stuck at home for the entire summer. But then he meets a talking bonobo in the forest at the back of his house who invites him to enter a magical world behind a Japanese Memory gate. There, he will get to collect wild memories from the time his gramps was a famous primatologist ... and soon, his adventure begins. Behind the gate lies a world far more enchanting than back home. In a world filled with mischievous Japanese beings called yokai, Jonty must battle to collect the memories in a series of hair-raising trials. But there is an evil sky pirate crew on board a ship who are hellbent on destroying the memories for good ... and they have bows and arrows. Can Jonty battle the pirate crew before time runs out and the wadokei watch-clock strikes?

KEY SELLING POINTS:

- A thrilling adventure story inspired by Japanese mythology and the supernatural.
- A boy's boring summer transforms into a race against time to save lost memories from destruction, which will keep readers hooked.
- Themes include: family legacy, curiosity and courage.
- Features beautiful black and white illustrations throughout by Japanese artist, Sawa.

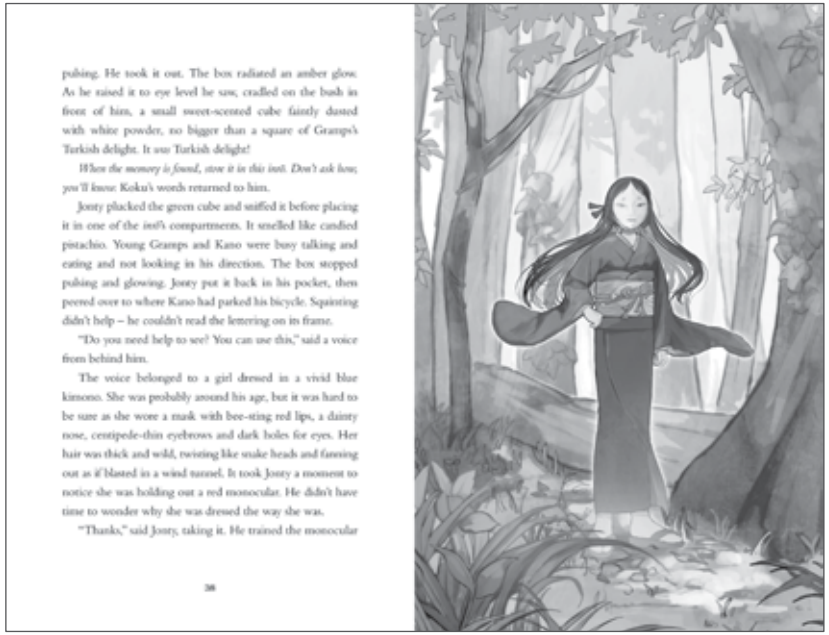

voice, in an accent not from around here. She was warm and serene, glowing with the glow of afternoon sunlight. The corners of her mouth sloped upwards, as though she was permanently on the cusp of smiling. There was something wise about her, but mischievous too.

The bonobo spoke again. "Young man, could you give my shoulders a rub?"

Jonty's mouth went dry. In stunned silence, he studied the bonobo as she straightened her belt. From it hung two objects: one round like a compass, the other a box. Only a moment ago at the footbridge he had been on the lookout for his favourite supernatural being – or yokai – known as a kappa: a cucumber-loving water imp no taller than a child, with a frog-like appearance, beaked mouth, a tortoiseshell on its back and what some might describe as a soup dish on its head. Kappa really existed according to his late Japanese grandmother, affectionately known as Baba, but none had been spotted locally for hundreds of years. Instead, Jonty was now confronted by a talking primate armed with a sword. Although the sword might have worried some children, Jonty trusted his gut that this was a friendly bonobo.

He couldn't keep her waiting any longer, so he answered, "If you want me to."

She beckoned him to climb down into the dugout, which pulsing. He took it out. The box radiated an amber glow. As he raised it to eye level he saw, cradled on the bush in front of him, a small sweet-scented cube faintly dusted with white powder, no bigger than a square of Gramps's Turkish delight. It was Turkish delight!

When the memory is found, stow it in this intl. Don't ask how, you'll know. Koku's words returned to him.

Jonty plucked the green cube and sniffed it before placing it in one of the intl's compartments. It smelled like candied pistachio. Young Gramps and Kano were busy talking and eating and not looking in his direction. The box stopped pulsing and glowing. Jonty put it back in his pocket, then peered over to where Kano had parked his bicycle. Squinting didn't help – he couldn't read the lettering on its frame.

"Do you need help to see? You can use this," said a voice from behind him.

The voice belonged to a girl dressed in a vivid blue kimono. She was probably around his age, but it was hard to be sure as she wore a mask with bee-sting red lips, a dainty nose, centipede-thin eyebrows and dark holes for eyes. Her hair was thick and wild, twisting like snake heads and fanning out as if blasted in a wind tunnel. It took Jonty a moment to notice she was holding out a red monocular. He didn't have time to wonder why she was dressed the way she was.

"Thanks," said Jonty, taking it. He trained the monocular

Nora and Leap are back—and ready to cause more chaos! Nora Nightsky isn't your typical star. She does NOT want to shine and she does NOT want to grant human wishes. But after her first successful trip to Earth, Nora's ready to return and help another human—much to the annoyance of her sister, Koko. Nora and Leap visit Maya, who wishes to become a comic book writer. Nora agrees to help her make her own wish come true, but something feels ... odd. The bottom of the WishPost was torn, and Maya's request for the right shoes for the task is mysterious ... Has there been some kind of magical mix-up? And can Nora figure it out and save the day in the nick of time, before her stardust runs out ... ?

KEY SELLING POINTS:

- The second book in this charming new young fiction series for readers moving up to the next level, brilliantly illustrated throughout in black and white by Becka Moor.
- Nora is a fun, bold, relatable character with a rebellious streak—and her adorable sparkly hare sidekick, Leap, balances her edginess perfectly!
- Gently introduces facts and mythology about astronomy and constellations in a playful and accessible way.
- Lots of humour, mischief and antics with themes of friendship and determination.

I took the WishPost out of the envelope and the beam of light shone down to Earth again.

"That's where we need to go!" I called to Pegasus.

"We have to wint!" he neighed back.

But Aquila, with Leap on his back, was nose to nose – well, nose to beak – with us.

Then we entered the Earth's atmosphere and the hairs on my neck stood on end. (Because we were upside down.) I clung on to Pegasus, my hair flopped over my face. I couldn't see Leap and Aquila anywhere.

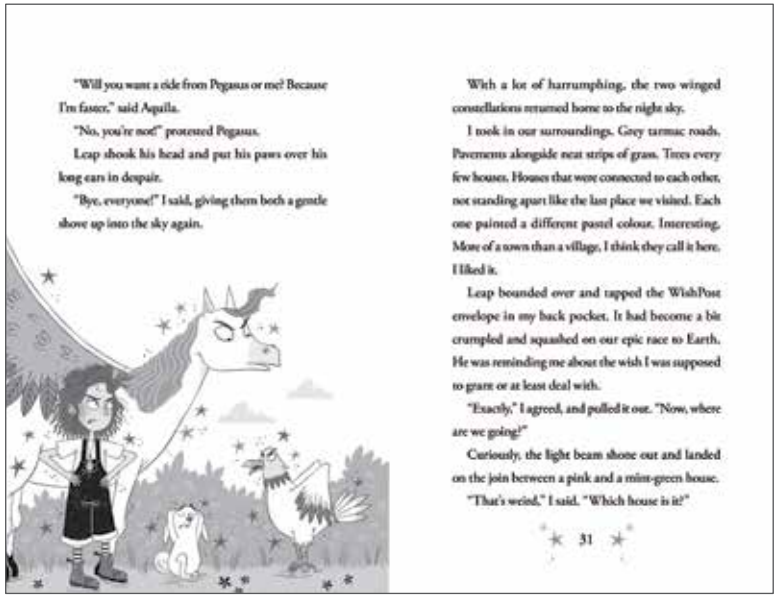

"Pegasus! We're upside down!" I yelled.

"Are we! I think it's fine," he called back.

It takes a while to adjust to gravity, I guess, and we turned loop-the-loops while hurtling towards the ground.

The light beam got brighter and brighter. Suddenly the greens and blues of Earth became countries and seas and then cities, and then I could make

"Will you want a ride from Pegasus or me? Because I'm faster," said Aquila.

"No, you're not!" protested Pegasus.

Leap shook his head and put his paws over his long ears in despair.

"Bye, everyone!" I said, giving them both a gentle shove up into the sky again.

With a lot of harrumphing, the two winged constellations returned home to the night sky.

I took in our surroundings. Grey tarmac roads. Pavements alongside neat strips of grass. Trees every few houses. Houses that were connected to each other, not standing apart like the last place we visited. Each one painted a different pastel colour. Interesting. More of a town than a village, I think they call it here. I liked it.

Leap bounded over and tapped the WishPost envelope in my back pocket. It had become a bit crumpled and squashed on our epic race to Earth. He was reminding me about the wish I was supposed to grant or at least deal with.

"Exactly," I agreed, and pulled it out. "Now, where are we going?"

Curiously, the light beam shone out and landed on the join between a pink and a mint-green house.

"That's weird," I said. "Which house is it?"

Lucy Kane hates pumpkin spice lattes.

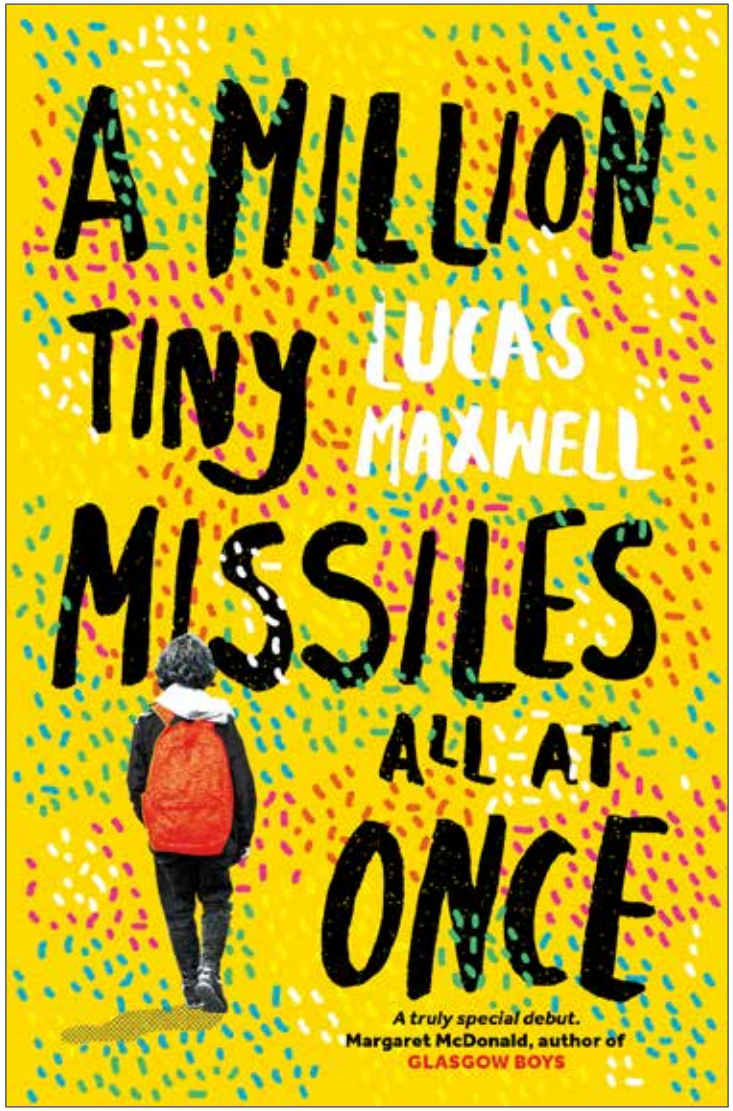

Which is a problem because: a) Lucy lives in the quaint New England town of Briar Glen where everyone loves all things autumn; and b) she's a barista at her mum's coffee shop, Cup o' Jo. As the first fall leaves descend upon Briar Glen, Lucy and her mum gear up for a busy season.

But then Java Junction, a multinational coffee chain, opens a store literally across the street. Home of the world-famous pumpkin spice latte. To make matters worse, it turns out that Jack Harper, the new kid in school and Lucy's secret crush, is the son of the owners. Talk about mixing business with pleasure.

If Cup o' Jo wants to survive the competition from Java Junction, Lucy will have to set aside her feelings for the popular drink—and Jack!—to make this the cosiest, pumpkin spiciest season ever.

KEY SELLING POINTS:

- A sweet, contemporary YA romance with a relatable complication—follow your heart or your head?
- Classic underdog story: a family-run coffee shop fighting against a corporate chain.
- Set in a charming New England town bursting with autumn foliage, warm drinks and small-town magic.
- A witty, wholesome and cosy YA romance.

A story of the Titanic, family, survival and the secrets we hide. Colette only wants three things: to prove she isn't weak, to get a job, and to uncover the mystery surrounding her father. All her life she's heard that he died in a factory accident, but she's haunted by dreams of bitter cold and a sea of stars, and part of her knows it's somehow connected to him. When Colette secretly gets a job, she becomes fascinated by the stories that Walter, the store owner, tells. He was aboard the Titanic before it sank. He saw the ship fall beneath the waves and watched as his brother perished in the sea. His memories bewitch Colette and she's drawn to the Titanic, and the more she learns, the more intense her dreams become. Then the stock market crashes. As things get desperate, Colette clings to Walter's stories—especially the ones about a man who shared her father's name. But then Walter reveals a truth that changes Colette's life and identity forever. Can Colette live the life she's lived all these years, knowing the truth now?

KEY SELLING POINTS:

- Perfect blend of historical fiction, family drama and suspense.
- Ideal for readers who enjoy emotional stories set in a backdrop of real events.

Twelve-year-old twin sisters Rada and Dariia Popkova couldn't be more different. Dariia is outgoing and chatty while Rada is quieter and artsy. But what they have in common is their love for each other and their home. The family lives in the Ukrainian city of Mariupol, which is attacked by the Russians on February 24, 2022. The attack separates the family—Dariia is with their mum and Rada with their dad. After separate struggles, the sisters have finally found their way back to each other. Though the siege has changed them, their love for their country and their family has remained the same. But their father is still somewhere out there, and they won't rest until they're all reunited.

KEY SELLING POINTS:

The underworld is a dangerous place. It's all fiery and there's marauding dragons and all sorts of other critters you wouldn't want to run into. Demise, aka Bone Head, isn't bothered about any of this. Why? Because he's a skeleton guardian of the underworld—and not just any guardian. He thinks he's the BEST and is determined to prove it ... with catastrophic results ... Demise just wants to impress his Big Boss, Hades, god of the underworld. Problem is, Hades barely knows he exists. After an attempt to get attention backfires horribly, causing the gates of Hades' castle to disintegrate, Demise and Mort are demoted to dog-sitting duty. And the dog in question? Cerberus, the famously ferocious three-headed dog of the underworld. What could possibly go wrong with two creatures made out of bones trying to keep a massive mythological dog under control?

When frost fairy Periwinkle travels too close to the forbidden border where Spring meets the Winter Woods, she unknowingly discovers a thread of a lost magic. And, for the first time, she begins to dream. While Periwinkle's dreams start sweet, they slowly morph into disastrous visions of the Pixie Dust Tree—the source of life for all of Pixie Hollow—destroyed. Soon Periwinkle is confronted by a sparrow man who knows that she has been dreaming. Weaver, the infuriatingly handsome stranger, claims to be a dream-talent fairy, the last of his kind. There's a chance he can spin Periwinkle's dreams into dream-thread, which could protect the Pixie Dust Tree. But to do so, they will have to embark on a quest to find a magic spindle and scissors in the legendary lost workshops of dream-talents past. But dreaming is dangerous, and as Peri's dreams begin to unravel, she will start to question everything she thought she knew. For in Winter, even beautiful things can hurt you ... and Weaver is no exception.

KEY SELLING POINTS:

- Set centuries after the New York Times bestseller Wings of Starlight, Wings of Reverie further expands the world of Disney Fairies and explores the story of Periwinkle and Weaver.
- Fairy-centric romances are currently making a significant impact on the market thanks to the 'romantasy' readers of TikTok. Combined with the power of the large cult following for the Disney Fairies franchise, this is a promising title that marries two demographics of passionate fans.
- Written by author Anna Bright, best known for her novels The Hedgewitch of Foxhall, The Song That Moves the Sun and the Beholder series.
